

holiday until later on in the Autumn.
If she holds it over until about October I may be able to get home myself for a few days leave them & it would be nice if we could meet at 125, wouldn't it?

I haven't forgotten that I owe Harwood a letter. I will write him soon. Also I must write to Drax -
I haven't written them for ages.

Well, I must stop now or else I shall not get any sleep before it is my turn for duty again.

With the best of good wishes & fondest love.

Your affectionate Brother
Horace
